In the execution of his considerable was a signing bills, he is not to perform a mere-mechanical part, but is to act and decide, and act according to his righteous convictions of the rightfulness or wrongfulness of the proposed law. The President's responsibility is to the whole people of the United States, as that of a Senator is to the President's responsibility is to the whole people of the United States, as that of a Senator is to the President's responsibility is to the whole people of the United States, as that of a Senator is to the President's responsibility is to the whole people of the United States that of a Representative to the people of a State or district, and it may be safely assumed that he will not resort to the elearly defined and unlimited power of arresting legislation and calling for reconsideration of any measure except in obedience to requirements of duty. When, however, he entertains a decisive and fixed conclusion, not merely of the unconstitutionality, but of the impropriety or injustice in other respects, of any measure, if he declares that he approves it, he is false to his oath, and he deliberately disregards his obligations. The President teeles called ou, at the threshold, to motion as assertion often repeated, that the refusal of the United States to satisfy these claims in the manner proposed by the present bill, rest as a stain on the justice of our country. If it be so, the imputation on the public honor is aggravated by the consideration that the claims are coveral with the present century, and it has been a pesistent wrong during that whole period of time. This her fresident teeles. If new facts, not known, or not accessible during the administration of selferson, Madison or Monroe, had since been brought to light, or new sources of information discovered, this would greatly relieve the subject of embarrassment. But nothing of this only of

Mr. Jonus said but twelve legislative days are remaining, and he therefore moved the previous question, with a view of acting upon the message forthwith.

The motion was voted down, 62 to 90.

Several amendments were offered to Mr. Bayly's motion

Mr. Camprell wished a postponement till the 3d or March. The bill could not be passed by a constitutional majority, and it was a foolish waste of time to debate it. He had a respect for the President, but no respect for the principle which sought to strike down the will of the people by the veto.

Mr. Harkedall referred to the pressing public business, and urged action forthwith.

Mr. Hurw was for postponement. The great constitutional question of liberty was involved. Were they to be slaves to Executive power?

Bonai question of history be slaves to Executive power? Further debate ensued, but the House adjourned without taking the question, and it will be the first business before the House on Monday.

SUNDAY IN JERSKY CTY.-Mayor Manuers, of Jersey engaged in an attempt to enforce the statute prohibiting but the sale of newspapers has been prohibited. The public officers deserve credit for their endeavors to enforce the observance of the laws, but the newspaper stables, and so forth, are allowed to do business on Sun day, while the selling of a book or a Sunday paper is punished as a crime. This is all wrong, and it is the Dealers in Clothing Visiting New York this season, are respectfully invited to examine our stock of spring and summer clothing, as we feel assured they will find it, from its extent, variety, style and cheapness, well worthy of their consideration. While the disposition of our manufacturers this season has been to greatly reduce their stocks, we have availed ourselves of the advantages of a low market for goods and labor, to manufacture a much larger stock than we have ever done; which, consequently, we will be enabled to offer at remarkably low prices.

One million seven bundred and sixty thousand boxes of Brandreth's pills were sold in the year 1854. This sale speaks well of the pills: their reputation is all the time on the increase. To use a homely phrase, "they hold their own." Step by step have they arrived at their present position. Other medicines are now being pushed into public notice. I have nothing to say; but I hope and trust that the public will patroute that medicine which will do them the most good. The public's servant,

B. BRANDRETH.—New YORK Feb. 2, 1855.

Dr. B. BRANDRETH.—From the great use of tobacco, I became so debilitated about eight years ago, that my physicians considered it impossible for me to recover. I was worn down to skin and bones, was afflicted with chronic dyspepsia, and everything I ate disagreed with me. I had constant pain in my chest, my bowels were costive, and seldom moved without recourse to medicine, which debilitated me more and more. In this condition I was recommended to use your "Vegetable Universal pills." I did so, and gradually became restored to excellent health through their use. They mildly, yet energetically, purged, and after each portion I seemed to be endowed with new life. My original robust health was soon restored, and, I thank God, I am now a vigorous man of fifty six. But for your pills I verily believe I should be now in my grave. I shall be pleased to see any one at my store, and will state further particulars. I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant.

Jesuits in our Homes. A Novel—by Helen Dhu. In one elegant volume of 410 pages, illustrated with fine tinted engravings; beautifully bound in muslin. Price. $1.

This extraordinary romance is creating a profound sensation throughout the country. It has thrown the politicians and critics into an unwonted sgitation; it has already been the theme of discussion in many legislative bodies. It delineates, with graphic power, the subtle intrigues of the Jesuits in America, in our homes, in society, in politics, and in government. The corrupting and degrading intrigues of unprincipled political demagogues, of all parties, are brought into full view under the intelerable blaze of light; while the artistic develop ments of the plot impart to the work the most brilliani characteristics of the finestromances. No novel, blending the social and political phases of American society into such a harmony as to make a vivid and complete picture has created before this ageneral interest among all classes of readers. It is valuable for its faithful

WHO IS HELEN DHU?

the author, whose caustic pen has exhausted this very profife subject, so far as to have already clipped the wings of some of the leading spirits who are depicted in such life-like colors in the volume.

The public can form something like an estimate of the interest of the work from the following opinions of who have reviewed it. The Commercial Advertiser remarks:—

"This is one of the books which seem predestined to have an immense circulation. We learn that the publishers have already been almost overwhelmed with orders for it." The New York Courier and Enquirer says:
"It is a book for the times, and is bound to have its run;" and the New York Times informs its readers that "A copy of this 'powerful production' has been sent to every member of the Legislature; and it has the endorsement also of Sam." He New York Evangelist observes: "It is an energetic Know Nothing work; forcible both in its style and its fates. It will undoubtedly meet with a great sale." The New York Evening Mirror presumes: "Whoever Helen Ibu may be, the tone of her book indicates that she is a man, and one who evidently knows considerable of the world." The New York Sunday Mercury remarks: "Although its leaves are hardly dry from the binder's hands, this book has created a furore in the country." The Lausingburg Gazette confidently states: "We bespeak for 'Stanhop Burleigh' not merely a popularity equal to 'Uncie Tom's Gabin,' but one far surpassing any publication which has for an age been unhered before the American public." The Boston Dally Bee, in an able review, jedges that "Ha literary merits are very high. Whoever wrote it—whether Helen Dhu be a real or a fictitious personate—has produced a work that will mark itself on the times. Its vice, fire, facts. characterization, troth, logic, are all vital, and of the time." Published by

THE MOST FUCCE SFUL AMERICAN BOOK—RUTH HALL; a domestic tale of the present time. By Fanny Fern. 400 pp., 12mo. Cloth. Price, 81 25. It has been reserved to this distinguished authoress to achieve what may, under the circumstances, be regarded as the most brilliant success ever obtained by an American writer of fiction. Ruth Hall, her first cantinuous story, though deriving no interest or popularity from connection with any of those vaxed questions which agitate the public mind, has, in the two months alone its first apperance, reached a greatly larger sale than any other American work of fection whatever within the same period. This extraordinary fact is, of it-self, abundant evidence of the absorbing interest and graphic power of this remarkable work. We have in our posassaion several hundred reviews of Ruth Hall, which have already appeared in the principal newspapers and periodicals. Nearly all of these pronounce it emphatically a work of genius, many predicting for it the largest tale of any American book, and devoting whole
